These reviewers filled out extensive surveys and wrote feedback about True-Learning.com that contributed to a score for the website. The judges also offered subjective feedback which is shown below.

True Learning is a learning system for children that feeds their brains during the early years when they are ready to imagine, learn and absorb complex concepts seemingly with no effort, but still allows them to “just be kids” as long as possible. This teaching technique uses developing tools that foster the very best in early learning experiences. Think of True Learning as a library of more than 3,000 worksheets for six subject areas, and four different learning levels for each one: Art, Literacy, Math, Motor Skills, Thinking and World.

According to two of the independent judges here are some of the positive characteristics of True-Learning.com:

“I loved this site for both my 3 year old and 6 year old. It was very much on their level and the certificates at the end when they mastered the skill were an added bonus. I was able to see where my children were at, what they needed improvement on and was able to see them advance. I am highly impressed with this website.”

“This is a great idea for anyone interested in home schooling or in supplementing their preschooler's education. The information and games provided were quite fun, colorful, interesting and appropriate.”

In addition to the outside reviewers, every product was evaluated by the iParenting Media Awards Executive Committee. The committee confirmed that True-Learning.com is eligible for promotion by iParenting Media, and that True Learning, LLC is now considered an iParenting Media Awards award-winning vendor for Best Website of 2007.

True Learning’s comprehensive early learning curriculum is designed to be developmentally appropriate for children aged 3 to 6. There are six subjects with four levels of difficulty (True Math, True Literacy, True Thinking, True Motor Skills, True Art and True World).
